BRITAIN'S SECRET PROGRAM FOR NEW BATTLE FLEET AT COST OF 750 MILLION DOLLARS BARED IN LONDON

ETHIOPIA REJECTS ITALY'S PROPOSAL TO GENEVA BODY

Restriction of Controversy to Mere Discussion of Frontier Incidents Is Ruled Out by Spokesmen for Selassie.

HISTORIC HOUR AT HAND, SAY ITALIANS

British Statesman Still Trying To Enlist Co-operation of France To Forestall African War.

By The Associated Press.

Ethiopia informed the League of Nations council yesterday it rejected Italy's proposal for restriction of the Italo-Ethiopian controversy to a mere discussion of frontier incidents by the arbitration commission.

In Milan the Popolo d'Italia, Premier Mussolini's own newspaper, asserted Italy now faced its historic hour and it was a matter of life or death now or never. The British ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond, continued negotiations for peace.

British statesmen attempted to enlist the co-operation of France in last-minute efforts to forestall a threatened East African campaign by Italy.

A huge mass demonstration by women of Ethiopia was held in the main square of Addis Ababa, as the native press continued its denunciation of alleged anti-Ethiopian propaganda by the Italian government.

Pope Pius expressed hope for peace in East Africa in a commemorative pronouncement for Justin De Jacobis, apostolic vicar of Ethiopia who died in 1890.

ETHIOPIA REJECTS ITALY'S VIEW OF PROBLEM

GENEVA, July 28.—(P)—The government of Ethiopia today rejected Italy's contention that the arbitration commission on the Italo-Ethiopian dispute be restricted to discussion of frontier incidents without considering the question of border sovereignty.

A telegram received by the League of Nations council from Bellina Gueta Heroy, Ethiopian foreign minister, threw the whole question of the interpretation of the commission's powers into the council's hands and indicated that Ethiopia would abide by that body's judgment.

In reply to a telegram of July 27, Heroy's telegram read, "Ethiopia confirms its request submitted by its delegates with a view to obtaining an interpretation of the mission of conciliation and arbitration."

"The Ethiopian government denies it ever agreed to a limitation of the arbitrators' powers. The Ethiopian note of July 17 replying to the Italian note of July 14 has already stated that it rests with the council of the League of Nations to decide between the respective contentions of two groups of arbitrators."

In reply to the Italian note of July 23 requesting that the arbitrators' mission be restricted, the Ethiopian government fully maintains all arguments adopted by two awards of neutral jurists who were appointed by it on the commission.

The Ethiopian conciliators declared a decision was necessary as to whether a decision belonged to Ethiopia or Italy. Premier Mussolini, of Italy, holds that the arbitration commission is a body outside of the scope of the commission.

BRITAIN SEES FRENCH CO-OPERATION

LONDON, July 28.—(P)—Great Britain sought today the co-operation of France to persuade Italy to reconsider the restriction of the arbitration commission's powers to a mere discussion of frontier incidents.

British statesmen attempted to enlist the co-operation of France in last-minute efforts to forestall a threatened East African campaign by Italy.

Irwinton Stakes Hopes for Future On Building Ball's Ferry Bridge

Entire Population of 700 Looks Forward to Seeing Span Across Oconee River; Leading Citizens Advocate Immediate Construction To Give City Outlet.

(Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles on the controversial Ball's Ferry bridge proposal. Another story will be published in The Constitution Tuesday.)

By L. A. FARRELL.

IRWINTON, Ga., July 28.—If the eastern side of the Oconee river is hot for the Ball's Ferry bridge this side, the western flank is torrid. A diligent search among Irwinton's 700 residents failed to produce anyone who would speak out against the project while scores were found advocating it.

Like Irwinton's sister city of Wrightsville on the Johnson county side of the river, Irwinton is finding much concern over the projected bridge to talk about as the crowds gather on its two-block Main street but there isn't any argument, they're all for the bridge.

Irwinton hasn't flourished in the last generation or two despite the advertising given the city by the late Senator George H. Carswell, who made numerous state-wide campaigns in the years just previous to his death. The main street is knee deep in dust. The entire county has only two miles of surfaced roads and no bridges of consequence. Paving of other roads had detoured traffic around Irwinton and the town has just gone along hoping against hope that the Ball's Ferry bridge some day would be built and bring Irwinton back to its former glory.

Once Leading City. Time was when Irwinton was the leading city as well as the county seat of Wilkinson. But no more. To the west Gordon, which is on the Central of Georgia, has prospered while to the east McIntosh has come along. There hasn't been much of a way to get to Irwinton and the town thinks it's suffering is caused chiefly by the lack of a paved road in from the east. Gordon draws the folks from the west and Irwinton really has only one way from which to pull its trade.

Victor Davidson, a distinguished-looking lawyer, is attorney for the county and more or less the political boss of the area. Mr. Davidson said today he believed that only the construction of a bridge would save the town.

GERMANS DECLARE NAZI FLAG INSULT TO WORK OF SOVIETS

While U. S. Government Expresses Regret, Editorials Resent Alleged Affront to German Flag.

BERLIN, July 28.—(P)—The reich press, commenting wrathfully today on the ripping of the Nazi flag from the German liner Bremen in New York Friday, attributed the outbreak to the pronouncements of the present communists' council in Moscow.

While due notice was taken of the report from Washington that the United States government has expressed regret over the incident through Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur J. Carr, the editorials are still filled with resentment over what they consider an affront to the German flag.

Kreuz Zeitung characterized the Bremen incident as "the first fruits of the seventh communist international." Germania, Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung and Morgenpost all emphasize that such treatment of a foreign liner would be absolutely impossible in any German port and that it just shows the world it need not excite itself over the treatment of Jews in Germany.

"Hope of Civilized World." Antikommunisten, the Association of German Anti-Bolshevik Societies' manifesto, says: "Germany is the only hope of the civilized world. Bolshevism considers that it holds the key position and that once Germany is conquered victory for bolshevism is certain."

The paper calls upon all bickering statesmen to "stand together against the common enemy—the communist international."

Added to the reich's troubles about Jews and the suppression of Catholic organizations and the steel helmets, the government today was showered by protests of "unjustified" rise of prices of household necessities. Despite the power of price regulation granted Police Commissioner Karl Goer-

G-MEN MAY TRAIL MISSING OFFICIAL OF UTILITIES PROBE

H. C. Hopson, Who Was Sought by Pecora Two Years Ago, Again Flaunts Subpoena of Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(P)—A possibility that "G-men" may be put on the trail of a missing power company executive arose today after 10 days of fruitless hunting by senate lobby investigators.

H. C. Hopson, vice president of the Associated Gas & Electric Company—the big holding unit which spent $700,000 to combat the administration's utility bill—is the man wanted. J. I. Manges, chairman of A. G. E., is in a hospital and unavailable to the committee.

If committee agents continue unsuccessful in their search for Hopson while senators call lesser A. G. E. officials to the stand tomorrow, a committee member said the justice department will be asked to help.

Sought Once Previously. It would not be the first time "G-men" were sent out to find Hopson. Two years ago Ferdinand Pecora sought his aid in locating the holding company official during the senate's stock market inquiry.

A. G. E. officials summoned to the stand tomorrow include O. E. Wasser, S. J. Magee, C. A. Dougherty, Fred Burrows and W. Partridge Jr. Wasser is the man with whom U. S. E. Beach, head of the securities department at Erie, Pa., told the committee he talked before ordering the destruction of records in 26 states relating to the campaign against the abolition of "unnecessary" holding companies.

Punch Card Box Probe. Senate investigators meanwhile quietly pursued the inquiry into mysterious "box" which was carried from the hotel room of John W. Carpenter, Texas Power Company head, and which Representative Patton, democrat, Texas, said contained only cigars.

Magic Machine Combs Crime File, Picks Out Suspects G-Men Want

Police at Training School To Be Shown How Department of Justice Operatives Get Their Men and Clinch Their Evidence.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(P)—The school bell will ring at the Department of Justice tomorrow and 21 policemen will start attending classes on how to catch criminals.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the division of investigation, will conduct a three-month school and will be assisted by his experts who have made a noteworthy record in crime investigation.

The "pupils" selected from state and municipal departments in various parts of the country, will receive lectures in scientific crime detection, firearms and first aid and police administration.

They will be taught how the government men carefully preserve and compile fingerprints. Hoover hopes to enlist the co-operation of every local police department in adding to the fingerprint files that already have about 4,000,000 entries.

The investigation division also will demonstrate one of the miracles of modern crime detection. It is a machine that automatically goes through a card file and tosses out the records of all men answering to certain broad descriptions.

For instance, if the department is looking for a man who is six feet tall, has black hair, blue eyes and weighs 185 pounds, the machine is set according to those specifications. Then it goes through the vast files, and, operating on a system of holes punched in the cards, tosses out the records of all men answering that description.

The police also will be shown how Department of Justice agents are taken to a target range and made to practice marksmanship until they become expert marksmen.

One thing to be stressed is the proper manner of collecting evidence. The government men, most of whom are accountants and graduates of law schools, don't waste time on evidence that cannot be presented in court. They go to a case from the standpoint of getting something a prosecutor can use and the result is the division obtains convictions in more than 90 per cent of the cases it takes to court.

12 CAPITAL SHIPS, 33 CRUISERS PART OF GIGANTIC PLAN

Admiralty To Stretch Complete Rebuilding of Navy Over Seven Years; Paper Says England Blocked Disarmament.

LEADING NATIONS KNOW OF SCHEDULE

Empire To Be Independent of Other Powers Regardless of Their Strength Upon Seas.

LONDON, July 29.—(Monday)—Great Britain plans to build almost a complete new battle fleet costing $750,000,000 by 1942, the Daily Herald said today in an article which it claimed revealed a secret seven-year plan developed by the admiralty.

Despite a statement in the house of commons by Commander B. M. Eyles-Monell, first lord of the admiralty, declaring publication of the program would "be against the interests of the public and the peace of the world," the newspaper published what it described as "the admiralty's famous 'hush-hush' plan which already has been communicated to the admiralties of the United States, France, Germany, Italy and Japan."

The huge new schedule, the newspaper announced, calls for the construction of 12 new capital ships and 33 cruisers.

21 New Subs.

The latter item, it was said, fulfilled the dictum of Admiral Viscount John R. Jellicoe at the Geneva conference of 1927, when he asserted 70 cruisers were "the absolute requirement" for Britain to remain independent regardless of the strength of other powers.

In addition, the newspaper stated, there will be 63 new flotilla leader destroyers, 21 new submarines and three new aircraft carriers.

Allowing for ships which become outdated under the Washington and London treaty rules during the seven-year period, the paper says the comparative strength of the British fleet in "in date" ships between 1935 and 1942 will be as follows:

In 1935, 15 capital ships, 50 cruisers, 84 flotilla leader destroyers, 39 submarines, 8 aircraft carriers; in 1942, 14 capital ships, 72 cruisers, 142 flotilla leader destroyers, 57 submarines and 10 aircraft carriers.

The battle cruiser H. M. S. Hood, although technically outdated in 1940, still will be serviceable in 1942. The program, the Daily Herald says, calls for the building of three cruisers, nine flotilla leader destroyers and three submarines in 1936 with five capital ships, five cruisers, nine destroyers, three submarines and one aircraft carrier in 1938.

Program Attacked. The Daily Herald said editorially: "This great program is intensely creditable to the government. It is creditable because it is a direct sequel to the government's failure to accept, indeed its success in blocking opportunities for naval disarmament, which in recent years was offered."

It was Baldwin's government which wrecked the 1927 conference in Geneva by declaring through Jellicoe 70 cruisers were the "absolute requirement" for Great Britain.

When Italy proposed the abolition of capital ships in the early stages of the disarmament conference, Great Britain led the objectors. When the Americans proposed a reduction in the number of United States and British

U. S. POWER BEHIND THRONE OF COTTON

Experts Contend Government May Get Its Price From Mill Consumers.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(P)—Cotton may still be king, but Uncle Sam expects to be the power behind the throne.

The approach of the new cotton season finds the federal government holding what some officials say amounts to a virtual temporary corner on leading grades in the domestic supply.

Cotton statisticians figure the government-financed supply when the old season ends this week will approximate 6,000,000 out of a total domestic supply of around 7,000,000 bales. The world supply of American cotton is estimated to be less than 9,000,000 bales.

Until the new crop begins to move to market in volume, some experts contend the government may be in position to get its price from the mills.

Subject for Debate. Meanwhile, in the cotton business, cotton has been the subject of much debate and thinking in official quarters.

Under the 12-cent loan of the past season, growers were reportedly to have turned in nearly 4,500,000 bales, or about half of last year's crop. The latest figure of government loans against the cotton crop is $221,000,000.

Debate for the moment pivots on how much should be loaned on new cotton. The 12-cent loan was considered by many too high, although it was under the prevailing market at the time it was announced.

Under the 12-cent loan, cotton exports fell about 25 per cent to around 3,000,000 bales, the smallest since the 1922-23 season; domestic consumption declined about 7 per cent. Consequently, there was only a moderate decrease in the domestic carryover, despite the small crop last year.

Look For Cut to Come. While the impression has been spread on Capitol Hill that the 12-cent loan would be continued, some farm experts insist it should be cut in view of the possibility of a larger crop this year, the abnormality of heavy export and increasing production abroad.

Foreign users drew from their reserves of American cotton the past year to offset a deficit of purchases over consumption. Consequently, cotton stocks are disposed to look for some increase in exports during the new season, unless the American price is too high.

Federal farm authorities contended the 12-cent loan—criticized in the export trade as an "umbrella" permit foreign growers to dispose of their offerings first—could not be held entirely responsible for the drastic decline in American exports.

VANDENBERG SAYS TAX PLAN IS HOAX

Senator Insists Congress Adjourn Now and Meet Issue in January.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(P)—The new tax bill was termed a "hoax" today by Senator Vandenberg, as democratic leaders planned to smash down a republican attempt to force congress to adjourn August 10 without voting the levies.

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, whose name is heard in discussions of republican presidential possibilities, made a new assault on the President's wealth tax plan in a formal statement.

Residing calling it a "hoax," he said it would raise only "a little extra pocket change" and insisted that it was a "sterile political gesture" and a "mere flagrant flattery" with real show wealth.

Again demanding tax legislation drafted "in conjunction with the budget," Vandenberg insisted that congress should suspend "this pell-mell panhandle" adjourn now and "meet the real (tax) issue in a real way next January."

One of his colleagues, Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware, had introduced a resolution to fix the adjournment date of the present session at August 10. That resolution will be pulled up tomorrow. Partial polls indicated it would be rejected or talked to death.

Vote on Adjournment Today. Under the senate's rules, the resolution must be disposed of by 2 p. m. tomorrow or laid aside for other business. There was a possibility debate might run beyond that time.

A formal call went out for a meeting of the full house ways and means committee tomorrow to consider in executive session the $270,000,000 bill drafted by committee democrats. Only Saturday they reached down to boost surtax levies on $50,000 incomes.

Republican committeemen, convinced their seven-man minority would be snuffed under by the democratic 18-man majority, were about hopeless of changing the bill in the committee. They planned, however, to offer some amendments for the purpose of building a record and then to enlarge that record by amendments from the floor.

One item they will single out for attack is the proposed tax of 13 1/4 per cent on all net corporate income under $15,000 and 14 1/4 per cent on all over that amount. Administration chiefs sneered that into the bill by the narrow margin of a 10-to-8 vote by democrats.

Republicans thought they might get enough democratic votes to knock out that tax, but majority members contended most of the democrats would stand fast since it was advocated by the President.

To Report Bill Tuesday. The tentative schedule, in the generally renewed drive for early adjournment.

CALLS FOR ACTION AGAINST GERMANY

Green, President of A. F. L., Cites Inhuman Treatment of Laboring Class.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(P)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, called on the federal government tonight to take "appropriate action" against the Hitler government in Germany to stop "brutal, inhuman treatment" of the laboring class.

In behalf of the American Federation of Labor, Green said in a statement, "I repeat its official protest against the most recent action of the Hitler government."

"Surely the governing nations which make up the civilized world cannot longer remain indifferent to the action of a tyrant such as Hitler, to his excellent in brutality and fiendish persecution of the rulers of a bygone pagan age."

The time has arrived when Germany ought to be boycotted, not only by labor and its friends but by all the people of the United States.

Furthermore, in the light of historical events it would appear that the federal government ought to take appropriate action to the cessation of the brutal inhuman treatment being perpetrated upon the laboring people who wish to preserve their democratic trade unions in Germany, and upon the Jewish people and the Catholics.

Green said Hitler's "further drives against the Jews and Catholics" had "indicated" the A. F. of L.'s action in "declaring a boycott against German goods and German service." He added:

"Labor in the United States will join with others in taking appropriate action which will enable it to voice its indignation against the tyrannical and inhuman policies pursued by Hitler."

THUGS ROAM CITY DURING WEEK-END

Six Holdups, 4 Burglaries and Purse Snatching Net Bandits About $200.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(P)—Six holdups, a purse-snatching and four burglaries late Saturday and early yesterday netted criminals more than $200 in cash and other valuables.

A window-breaking burglar crashed a plate-glass window of the LeGrand Jewelry Company, at 120 Alabama street, and escaped with jewelry valued at about $200. The broken window was discovered at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Twenty-seven dollars in cash was obtained by two thugs who held up Carl Tegeter, of 580 Pence de Leon avenue, under the Forsyth street viaduct about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He reported to police yesterday. They also took a wrist watch valued at $10, he said.

L. B. Dickerson, of 281 Patterson avenue, S. E., lost $7.50 and a watch valued at $75 to three masked and armed white men who held him up at 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

Two armed negroes, Henry Bacon, of 492 Crew street, into an alley near Capitol and Woodward avenues last night and robbed him of $25 in cash and a watch, and a second armed negro, who was armed with a knife, robbed him of $1.50 from the same place.

NEEDY STUDENTS TO RECEIVE HELP

Government To Set Up Summer Schools To Employ 1,000 Teachers.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(P)—Federal help for both needy students and teachers was planned today by the Works Progress Administration.

The two-fold program: 1. Harry L. Hopkins decided to set up summer schools for 1,200 teachers who were among those who taught reading and writing to 500,000 illiterates last year.

2. Aubrey Williams, head of the National Youth Administration, said jobs would be provided 125,000 college students during the coming school year and announced that men and girls leaders had endorsed his $500,000 program.

25 Summer Schools. Dr. L. R. Alderman, who is serving with both the relief and the youth administrations, said 25 summer schools would be held. The sessions will be for a period of about 13 months.

Alderman added he already had sent out field agents to aid in setting up courses at New York University, Ohio State University, Purdue University, Olivet College (Michigan), University of Wisconsin, University of Chicago, University of California. The other training schools have not been selected.

Mr. Roosevelt also allotted an additional $6,000,000 to the Fort Peck dam in Montana; $2,500,000 to the agriculture department for control of the Colorado river; and $1,000,000 for a flood control survey by army engineers of the Willamette river valley in Oregon; $700,000 to New Jersey and $308,000 to Florida for Works Progress Administration projects and $140,000 to the navy department for administrative expenses.

Favorable Comment Made. Favorable comment on the youth program, which also contemplates putting 65,000 children in camps and supplying apprentice work for others of the 500,000 scheduled for help, was received by Williams today from James E. West, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America, and others.

Meanwhile, following up appointment of Holger Cahill to direct painting and sculpture carried out by needy artists, President Roosevelt allotted $300,784 of work-relief funds for the decoration of federal buildings.

Mr. Roosevelt also allotted an additional $6,000,000 to the Fort Peck dam in Montana; $2,500,000 to the agriculture department for control of the Colorado river; and $1,000,000 for a flood control survey by army engineers of the Willamette river valley in Oregon; $700,000 to New Jersey and $308,000 to Florida for Works Progress Administration projects and $140,000 to the navy department for administrative expenses.

East Point Councilman Pinned to Wall by Car

P. H. "Pat" Orr, East Point councilman and veteran of the Spanish-American War, was seriously injured Saturday night when his automobile pinned him to a garage wall at his home. He was taken to Hospital No. 48.

Mr. Orr, who is 62 years old, suffered a crushed or broken ankle, lacerations of the arm and severe contusions of the right side, relatives said.

The accident occurred as he was cranking his automobile, the battery of which was dead, in front of the garage. The car was in gear, and drove him through the closed door, pinning him to the wall at the back of the garage.</

THREE MEN CAPTURED IN MICHIGAN SLAYING

Police, Armed With Machine Guns, Take Trio Charged With Many Crimes.

LANSING, Kas., July 28.—(P)—Armed with machine guns, Kansas highway patrolmen captured three men today near Sabetha, Kas., seizing them in connection with a Michigan motorist slaying, a Nebraska bank holdup, two abductions and a long list of filling station robberies.

Major Wint Smith, head of the highway patrol, announced the three were Howard Vernon, 27, formerly of Fairbury, Neb.; John Meade, 19, and Larry Kruse, of Sioux City, Iowa. Major Smith said that Meade named Vernon as the man who killed a motorist near Saginaw, Mich., during efforts to obtain his machine, shooting the man six times in the legs, once in the chest and once in the stomach. The date of the slaying was not known.

"That man's voice has haunted me ever since," Smith quoted Meade as saying. Smith said the three had been identified as the kidnappers of W. E. Grogman, Kansas City grain salesman, at Herkimer, Kas., during a theft of his car and had admitted abducting Marshal Charles E. Mack at Hooper, Neb., last week under another car theft.

The men were being questioned in connection with a bank holdup at Sergeant Bluff, Neb., Thursday and a gunfight with Fairbury, Neb., officers.

REVENGE MOTIVE SEEN IN BABY KIDNAPING
COUER D'ALENE, Idaho, July 28.—(P)—Officers, stirred by the rise of a possible "revenge kidnaping" motive, hunted today for a mysterious blue sedan as the key to the disappearance of 2-year-old Bobby Rush a week ago. Deputy sheriffs linked the reckless speed of the vehicle over Sage Creek county roads with an unsigned note, scribbled on a postcard, which changed the aspect of the missing baby case last night.

"Your baby is O. K. Don't worry," That was the message that came to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rush, of Athol, Idaho. It had been mailed on a train between Spokane, Wash., and Pendleton, Ore.

Mrs. Rush, her voice firm despite a week of anguish, said the family had been on relief for two years. A ransom motive, she said, would be out of the question.

"And I don't know of any enemy who would want to steal one of our four children," she added.

Editor Rountree Reads News of Ball's Ferry Row

The picture shows the deep interest in and around Wrightsville concerning the Ball's Ferry bridge controversy. IRWINTON STAKES HOPE ON BALL FERRY BRIDGE

struction of Ball's Ferry bridge would not Irwinton and Wilkinson county on the upgrade.

"To have a city and to do business you must have transportation facilities," the lawyer declared. "We have no railroad here and folks in cars from down toward the river and from the other side just couldn't get here if we were our friends on the east and miles of paving although we've been paying gasoline taxes along with the rest of the state for 15 years. We think we have not gotten our just due. We think we ought to have the bridge."

Pin Faith to Bridge.
O. W. Bell, the Wilkinson county tax collector, thinks a great majority of the people of the county pin their faith in Irwinton's future in the Ball's Ferry bridge.

"Towns to the north, to the south and to the west of us have prospered because of the highway facilities afforded them and just as surely have we remained stationary because we have been unable to get any good roads and the much-needed bridge over the Oconee," Mr. Bell said today. "The road has been improved west of here but so far this improvement has only taken our trade toward Macon. We have our friends on the east and we think they would do business in Irwinton if they could get here."

This correspondent asked earnestly if there weren't someone around who felt that things could go along just as well if the bridge was put off a year or two.

"There used to be a fellow living here who took us for a ride on the bridge," he declared. "But he only comes to town once in a while now and he doesn't have the interest of Irwinton at heart any more. Ralph Culppepper, the city's leading merchant, responded. "We just can't do anything without that bridge."

Mr. Culppepper was asked whether or not he would favor spending $250,000 on paying highways or building the bridge if the Highway Board said that sum was available for the county.

"Well, for my part, I'd tell them to pave the road from Dublin to Milledgeville," the merchant replied. "But they do not want to give us any paving so it looks like we won't get anything if we do not get the bridge. So I say go after the bridge and that's just what we are doing."

FAIR WEATHER SEEN FOR ATLANTA TODAY

Generally fair weather with probable scattered thunderstorms during the afternoon is forecast by the weather bureau for Atlanta today.

The temperature yesterday ranged lower than has been the rule for the past few weeks, the mercury touching 88 during the afternoon. The lowest temperature recorded was 70 early yesterday morning.

WASHINGTON RELUCTANT TO BELIEVE REPORTS
28.—(P)—Declaring they were reluctant to believe reports that Great Britain plans to spend $750,000,000 on a new building program, navy officials here said tonight such a development would mean a world-wide building race.

Reminding that the Washington and London limitation treaties do not expire until December 31, 1936, officials said that if construction was begun before that date it would mean the scrapping of the treaties.

In any case, they asserted that no further attempts at limitation by agreement would be possible, and that Japan, which denounced the Washington agreement in an attempt to obtain naval parity with the United States and Great Britain, certainly would increase its program.

Not Thought Serious.
Denying that Washington had been informed of the reported program, officials suggested, however, that it might not be so serious because possibly it was intended to encourage a new naval limitation.

Noting building plans followed the recent announcement by Commander B. M. Eyras-Monell, first lord of the admiralty, that Great Britain would no longer support the ratio method of determining naval strength, officials said it "might" bring an alteration in American plans to build to treaty strength by 1942.

In addition to 24 warships for which funds were provided in year's appropriation act, the navy needs 36 destroyers and 18 submarines. Denying that Germany's plans for a naval increase had anything to do with the British statement, officials recently said that next year's program would include 12 destroyers and six submarines and possibly a battleship.

ment, called for the house committee to give its final approval to the tax bill by Tuesday night so it could be brought up on the floor Thursday at the latest. Meanwhile, Chairman Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, set Tuesday for the senate finance committee's first hearing on the tax bill.

Only brief hearings were planned and other democratic chiefs—among them Vice President Garner—were trying to get a democratic agreement to rush the bill through the senate floor by voting down all amendments offered.

Senator Frazier, republican, North Dakota, planned to talk with Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, about a separate vote on the North Dakota's $3,000,000 farm mortgage refinancing bill. Indications were that if Frazier could be assured a ballot, he would not offer his bill as an amendment to the tax measure.

Virtually all the major "must" bills on the President's schedule, except the Guffey coal stabilization measure, were in conference or on the way there. The Guffey bill still is pending in the house ways and means committee and will be taken up as soon as the tax bill is out of the way.

Awaiting conference decisions on differences between the house and senate were the social security, utilities holding company, farm adjustment and omnibus banking bills.

Hearings were to be started soon by the house coinage committee on the treasury's bill to permit the minting of mills and half-cent pieces. Unless that caused unexpected trouble, there was a possibility that it, too, might be slipped through before adjournment.

GERMANS PROTEST NAZI FLAG INCIDENT

deler last November, the complaints poured in from all parts of the reich. At Mannheim and Ludwigshafen-am-Rhein the situation became so acute that Nazi commissar Joseph Bierschel read the riot act to tradesmen threatening practitioners of the "shameful usury" with concentration camps unless it be stopped.

These domestic complications have not, however, monopolized the public attention which is intensively occupied with political aspects abroad. Thus the Ethiopian situation demands a great deal of space in the press, as does the cabinet crisis in the Netherlands, which is interpreted as another manifestation of "political Catholicism," which has become a popular and convenient catch-word.

Meanwhile, the hold on property by the national socialist party and its affiliated constabulary groups was made more secure by a decree of Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk, reich minister of finance, which raises the party to the status of a German state or municipality. The decree gives the party preferential treatment in acquiring the use of state-owned lands and buildings.

The reich may demand rentals, but, in the words of the decree, "in view of the indissoluble unity of the national socialist party the state is desirous that the party's wishes be duly met in any case wherever it is possible."

ANTI-NAZI FEDERATION PLANS MORE DEMONSTRATION
NEW YORK, July 28.—(P)—Further demonstrations against German boats was planned today by an organization calling itself the "Anti-Nazi Federation."

The organization announced that a meeting had been called of "278 affiliated organizations" for Monday night to lay plans to "prevent the flying of the swastika" and "to cause the boycott of Nazi ships."

Nine persons are under arrest as the result of Friday night's disorders at the Bremen pier where Nazi colors were torn from the boat. Two are in hospitals, one with a bullet wound.

The new demonstrations, said a statement from the federation will "serve to highlight the fact that prominent American citizens are patronizing the Nazi shipping lines despite the violation of the rights of

Ticks That Don't Stick Are Called Dangerous

Two of the scientists—themselves stricken while tracing the disease—joined in warning vacationists and residents of western mountain regions to beware of the tick.

When distended, they said, it has a strawberry red hue, except for a whitish anterior point. Unlike the sticking species, it drops off after it has had its fill of blood, which it usually manages to obtain in less than 30 minutes.

The two scientists, C. M. Wheeler, assistant in entomology, and George E. Coleman, research assistant, although too ill to stand after they were stricken, helped develop the germ for study from specimens in their own blood.

Relapsing fever, common in the tropics and Africa, was declared by the scientists to have become a definite health menace in California.

American citizens in Germany and the outrageous attack upon their religious freedom in the Reich.

Both the riot and Mayor La Guardia's refusal of a masseur's license to a German alien have drawn protests from the German press, which has charged that the American people to combat the barbarism of the Hitler regime.

The mayor refused the masseur's license application on the ground that the treatment of American Jews had abrogated a reciprocal commercial pact of 1925.

State department officials meanwhile continued silent on the German situation. Officials said that unless the matter was brought formally to the department, there will be no comment on the official German press service communique that Berlin considered the German-American commercial treaty broken by Mayor La Guardia's refusal to give a masseur's license to a German citizen in New York.

PROCESS TAX LEGAL,
FEDERAL JUDGE RULESMemphis Jurist Takes Issue
With Other Decisions on Question.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 28.—(AP)—Processing taxes are legal under the welfare clause of the constitution, District Federal Judge John D. Martin ruled in upholding the validity of the agricultural adjustment act.

Martin, a lifelong democrat and president of the Southern Baseball Association, only recently was appointed to the federal judgeship here by President Roosevelt.

The judge, in his oral decision late last night, took cognizance that "certain district judges have pronounced the act unconstitutional and the United States court for the first district in a two-to-one decision has so held," but that his court feels free despite such decisions "to pronounce independent views."

Congress Fixed Products.

He held congress has fixed the products to be taxed under the act, set up a scale of prices and therefore did not delegate taxing authority to the secretary of agriculture; that it was a tax and not a revenue measure.

Judge Martin's decision dismissed a suit brought by Jacob G. Lacroix, Memphis packer, to recover $8,863 paid in processing taxes and denied an injunction to restrain the government from collecting a penalty of $1,207 for failure to file a return within the legal time limit. The case is to be appealed.

He reviewed the background of the enactment of the law. "No more serious problem existed," the judge said, "than the predicament of the farmer, and so the agricultural adjustment act was born. It remained unchallenged so far as its constitutionality was concerned for many months until improvement in the agricultural situation was noted."

Necessary Legislation. He said it was his opinion that "if any legislation has ever been necessary for the United States and its farmers, it was the AAA."

"The general welfare clause of the constitution gives legality to such a (processing) tax. The most serious question is whether the act is delegating a taxing power to the secretary of agriculture."

"Congress has set out products to be taxed and fixed the basis for such taxation rate. It is only left to the secretary of agriculture to follow the scale."

He said it is not the intention of the constitution makers "to muscle bind the country with extraneous phrases."

The packing company contended the processing tax on packers was not a tax but a revenue measure.

"The money is paid into the United States treasury," Judge Martin said in reference to this question, "and no matter for what use it is earmarked, that alone makes it a tax."

GOVERNMENT EAGER FOR FINAL RULING

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(AP)—The latest decision on the AAA, handed down by a Memphis district federal judge, today emphasized the government's eagerness for a final ruling by the supreme court.

The Memphis ruling, made by John D. Martin and holding the AAA processing tax valid, provides the second test case for the court. The first was an adverse ruling, made by a Boston circuit court of appeals at Boston.

Meanwhile, the administration has been racing against court decisions with a bill to bulwark the AAA by itemizing the commodities to be taxed. The purpose of this is to meet the contention that the original act illegally delegated congressional power to the secretary of agriculture.

The AAA bill, passed by both houses in different forms, now is pending in a senate-house conference committee.

Attorney-General Cummings has contended injunctions could not be granted to restrain collection of the processing taxes and disclosed that his department was pressing for an early decision by the supreme court.

The most recent figures available in official circles here disclose that more than 440 suits are pending in courts of the country against the processing tax, many of them accompanied by injunction applications.

'Chinatown Squad' Liked
By Lovers of Oriental Lore. Lovers of oriental lore and mystery will revel this week in the current film feature at the Capitol theater, "Chinatown Squad." The scenes for the most part are filmed in San Francisco's world-famous Chinese quarter. The cast is headed by Lyle Talbot, Valeria Hobson, Andy Devine and Leslie Fenton.

An agent for the usual revolution in China is caught stealing funds which he had collected from Americanized Chinese for the revolution. He is murdered and there begins a police hunt for the killer, which leads through the intricate maze and the dark-doings which are Chinatown.

The denouement is unusual and entertaining.

The sisters who were until recently radio favorites over a local station head the cast of the stage show, "Hi Ho Broadway." They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Johnson, of Chattanooga, and were known as the "Calico Kids."

Others in the cast of "Hi Ho Broadway" include the Burns twins, the tap dancers Harry Hines, comedian Pedro and Luis, circus performers: Paul and Paulette, dancers and Don Pedro, who stages an unusual feat in a stage.

Dewey Cone and his orchestra are mentioned last, but they are one of the best features of the bill.

Peruchi Players Give
'Accent on Youth' Today

Tonight at 8:30 "Accent on Youth," rated by many the greatest success of the year's New York season, will be presented for Atlanta theatergoers by the Peruchi Players at the Erlanger theater.

The securing of playing rights for this comedy demonstrates that in Mr. Peruchi Atlanta has a legitimate stage impresario who can secure the latest and best attractions while they are really new. "Accent on Youth" has never before been presented for less than several times the admission charged by the Peruchians and, inasmuch as Paramount has paid a big price for the screen rights it is probable it will not again be permitted for stock.

The play is a study in the love between a man of 50 and a much younger girl. It is brilliant and unconventional and should delight local playgoers.

Tonight, as usual at the Erlanger on Mondays, will be ladies' night, when ladies, accompanied by escort with paid downstairs ticket, will be admitted free.

WEED MART OPENING
SLATED FOR AUGUST 1Tobacco Growers Indicate
They Will Sell Crops
Despite Injunction.

TIFTON, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—Indications today were that Georgia's bright leaf tobacco auctions would begin Thursday with farmers throughout the belt offering their product with warehouse charges the same as last year.

Comment from a number of growers here and at other big auction points showed they intended to go ahead with marketing despite the plea of Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder that he wanted them to keep their tobacco off the market because warehousemen enjoined the state's new law reducing warehouse charges.

Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver at Macon Saturday granted warehousemen of the belt a restraining order against enforcement of the new state law which fixed prices lower than those previously charged for handling the crop.

Case To Be Heard. The case is to be heard later by a three-judge federal tribunal as to a permanent injunction. Meanwhile warehousemen must file daily reports of each sale, pay the court registry the difference between fees prescribed by the new law and what they collect and post a $2,500 bond to guarantee the cost of disbursing the fund in event the law is upheld.

Buyers, growers and warehousemen expect to handle a bumper crop of tobacco during the selling season. Prices are expected, many said, to be around the average of 18.73 paid in 1934.

K. C. Aultman, Tift county grower, commenting on the Macon injunction, said he would go ahead and sell his tobacco and he thought most growers would do the same thing as few are prepared to store their product and besides the warehouse space is needed for cotton which now is opening.

Charges Too High. Aultman said he thought "the old warehouse charges were too high," but could do nothing about them.

Dan Fletcher, another large Tift grower, said "I will sell all I can as fast as I can get it to market and wish I had more to sell."

L. A. Lewis, of Berrien county, said "I will sell the first day as rapidly as I can get it on the market."

At Hazlehurst, D. W. Hinson, large grower, predicted "the floor will be covered with tobacco at both Hazlehurst warehouses opening day."

Charles Graham and K. A. Bragg, two other large growers at Hazlehurst, said they would bring their tobacco for sale on the first day.

The Valdosta Times said "growers contacts here indicated they will place their tobacco on sale. Some of those contacted today said 'We don't know what to do yet.' It is presumed, however, the injunction will not stop the sale of the leaf here August 1."

BEAUTY CONTEST
ENTRIES TO CLOSE

Today Is Last Chance To File
'Miss Atlanta' Application.

Today is the last day in which to enter the "Miss Atlanta" contest being sponsored by the Paramount theater and Lakewood park. Any young woman between the ages of 18 and 30 is eligible to enter the contest and those desiring information are requested to call at the theater in person.

Nearly 100 applicants have registered, including Elizabeth Nour, Edna Silbers, Mollie Joe Sewsome, Sue Bowen, Susan Pratt, Barbara Mallit, Tootsie Robak, Doris Hightower, Billie White, Margaret Campbell, Marie Martin, Marjorie Mae Jones, Lucia Lightfoot, Opal Collins, Lola Belle Smith, Annie Turner, Catherine Weaver, Edna Roney, Francis Aiken Ward, Laura Francis Burgess, Dolly Horne, Geneva Evans, Louise Tumlin, Fay Shifflet and others.

Preliminary eliminations will be held at the Paramount theater next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, the finals being held at Lakewood park Sunday afternoon.

The winner will be named "Miss Atlanta" and will be sent to Atlantic City in September to compete for the national title of "Miss America."

DOERUN COTTON MEN
PRAISE F. D. R. FOR AID

DOERUN, Ga., July 28.—More than 1,000 cotton growers met here last night and adopted a resolution characterizing President Roosevelt as "the best friend the farmers have ever had in the position of the highest power in the government of the United States."

The resolution also asked that he immediately announce a loan on the 1935 cotton crop of at least 12 cents a pound.

The growers voiced their appreciation to President Roosevelt for the things he has accomplished for the betterment of agriculture, "that have bettered the conditions under which we live and that have renewed hope in our hearts for ourselves and our children."

Copies of the resolution were forwarded to the President, Secretary Wallace and the administrator of the AAA.

Savannah Plans 'Big Evening' for West Pointers.

Savannah, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—An evening in Savannah for 27 West Point cadets of the class of 1936, bound for Fort Benning for training, will be opened with a serenade by the eighth infantry band as the cadets disembark from their transport, the Chateau Thierry, 6:13 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and closed to the strains of orchestral music at a dance that has been arranged in honor of the visitors.

Two hundred and ninety local belles have been invited for the ball, which will begin at 9 o'clock at Hotel De Soto. Alderman Edgar L. Wortman, in charge of arrangements, is awaiting advice as to the time of ending the dance. Mrs. Robert B. Young heads a women's committee for the affair.

Officers in charge of the cadet detachment, and officers who will command the motor convoy which will take the West Pointers to Fort Benning Wednesday morning, will be guests of Lieutenant Colonel Jesse C. Drayn, commanding officer of Fort Screven, at a dinner at the fort. Later they will attend a dance at the fort, which the Officers' Club there will give.

Immediately upon disembarking the cadets will be taken on a sightseeing tour of the city in the motor vehicles which will bear them to Fort Benning. A route winding through the city has been mapped out.

At the close of the dance Tuesday night, the cadets will return to the transport for the night. After breakfasting aboard ship next morning, they will begin their journey to Fort Benning.

Community Problem.

All Must Vote.

"It appears to me the passage of the issue will be a simple matter as soon as the public is made familiar with the fact that all who possibly can must vote in order to insure ratification," Ewing said.

"A remarkable thing about this issue is that I have not heard a single individual who really opposes the purposes for which these bonds are to be issued. In fact, there is no opposition."

"We must not be lulled into a position of false success, however, because two-thirds of the persons who visit the polls must vote for bonds, and that two-thirds must constitute a majority of the registered voters in order to insure ratification. That is the law and it is the second provision which might give us trouble."

Community Problem. "Atlantans do not fail in any emergency. They will not fail in this. They will assume their responsibility to themselves and to others, and will provide an adequate sewer system to safeguard their own health and the health of others."

"Needs of the schools are apparent and we need have no fear they will not be met along with the sewer improvements. I consider both issues emergent, and am confident the people of Atlanta feel the same way about them."

Mayor Key named Ewing and Mrs. Ripley as co-chairmen of a citizens' group charged with the responsibility of getting out the vote for the bond election on September 18.

THE VALUE OF FALL GARDENS

Writing in the current issue of the Dalhousie Nugget, W. A. Maddox Jr., teacher of agriculture in Lumpkin high school, urges the planting of fall vegetable gardens, and calls attention to the fact that "for two generations the people on the farms in the south have overlooked the real value of the home garden."

He further points out that—
From the garden comes most of the living for the average farmer, and the more nearly this is true, better is the health of those in the home, because there is nothing so well suited as food for the human body as vegetables.

In most parts of the south farmers may have certain garden vegetables for use the entire year, direct from the garden. This is true of collards, cabbage, tender greens, turnips and like crops.

Many years ago farmers knew nothing of keeping vegetables for winter use, with the possible exception of potatoes.

In the garden department of last Sunday's Constitution, W. Elbridge Freeborn, leading southern flower and garden expert, called attention to the fact that this is the period in which the following garden products can be planted for fall picking:

Vegetable seeds: July is the accepted month for rutabagas, pumpkins, spinach, squash and crowder peas. Now that the 15th has come and gone, plant turnips, carrots, beets, beans and lettuce.

Vegetable plants: Tomato, eggplant, pepper, cabbage, collards may all be set out now for fall use.

Every home in Atlanta, including those with but a few feet of back yard, can have a garden from which the family table can be provided with fresh vegetables from early spring to late fall and, as pointed out in this editorial, there are some plants, such as greens, collards and cabbage, that will grow practically the year around.

It takes only a few feet of ground for a home vegetable garden, and its care is not only conducive to improved health but a source of keen pleasure. Yet the majority of our housewives, even those who live in suburban areas where they have ample ground to raise every type of vegetable, prefer to put vegetables on their tables bought from stores that must secure most of them from other states because the farmers of Georgia do not raise the quality of green foods the consumers demand.

Even many farm families buy from their neighborhood stores many of the vegetables they eat and which they should raise themselves.

No such condition is found in any other section of the country except the south, where, to make our failure to raise our own foodstuffs worse, the growing period is from a fourth to half as long again as in the north, east and west.

Southern families, rural as well as urban, must learn to raise more of the food they eat before they reap the full advantage of the natural blessings they enjoy.

World's Window

Parliament For Palestine.

Twelve years ago the British government, as mandatory for the League of Nations in Palestine, offered the country a measure of self-government in the form of a legislative council. The Arabs opposed it. Today the government again proposes a legislative council. Now the Jews oppose it. Why? The council will consist of the high commissioner and 22 members, of whom 10 will be appointed by the high commissioner and 12 appointed by the people, namely eight Moslem Arabs, two Jews and two Christian Arabs. In that council, thus constituted the Jews will be in a hopeless minority.

It is difficult for us, steeped as we are in democratic procedure, to understand why the Jews should oppose the establishment of such a council. We are inclined to say that the majority rule and let us abide by the rule of the majority. But in Palestine, the matter presents itself in a different light.

Incompatible With Mandate.

A legislative council in Palestine at the present moment is incompatible with the principles underlying the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine. For that Jewish national home is at present only in its initial stages of upbuilding. Since the mandate provides for the establishment of a national home in fulfillment of the national aspirations of the Jewish people and formally recognizes their historic connection with Palestine, it is only reasonable to demand that there be no obstacle in the way of the Jewish people in their representation of the Jewish people in Palestine before such a fundamental constitutional change comes about. For if the council is established, the Jewish people, as would be the case at present, that Arab majority would unquestionably oppose itself to further Jewish immigration and Jewish colonization. In other words, the Arab majority would defeat the very intention of the mandate.

The Larger View.

Palestine was to be turned into a national home for the Jewish people, by decision of the San Remo peace conference. This decision was ratified by 33 states, including the United States of America. A national home for the Jewish people did not mean only for the Jews then living in Palestine, for they were only a handful. But for the Jewish people of the world. That is why the Jews are really not in the minority. They are 16,000,000 strong. The Jews of the United States of America and England and Canada really have as much of a say in what is to happen in Palestine as the Jews residing there. That they have not taken it is a matter of regret, is due to short-sightedness and false reasoning, for the most part.

But you say, how about the Arabs? The Arabs are provided for by the mandate. Nothing is to be taken from them, and no Jew thinks of undertaking anything prejudicial to Arab civil and religious rights in the Holy Land. But Palestine is not a national home for the Jewish people. They have no such home at present. The Arabs have five national homes elsewhere. This does not mean that the Arabs in Palestine should leave. Far from it. They have a perfect right to stay there and grow prosperous. But the direction of the further evolution of the Jewish national home is in the hands of Jews, not of Arabs, and not of Englishmen either, and especially not of Englishmen who have systematically sabotaged the upbuilding of the Jewish national home.

A foolish remark that lent itself to magnification by alarmists in the United States.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

WASHINGTON, July 28.—President Roosevelt has quietly started to revise his inner circle line-ups. The biggest part of the job will not be completed until after the assignment of Charles West as assistant secretary of interior.

It is an open secret at the White House that Mr. West's success as a liaison officer with congress was not outstanding. This is not a reflection on Mr. West. He is a good conciliator, but only with gentlemen and not with wolves. What the White House needed for that job was a lion-tamer. This function now is being served by Vice President Garner, even to the extent that Senate Leader Robinson can be spared occasionally for a few speeches back home.

At the same time, there seemed to be need for a liaison officer between the White House and the interior department. Recent misunderstandings there have not been so conspicuous as those with congress, but are sufficiently important to engage Mr. West's talents.

Incidentally, Mr. West will be in line for the secretaryship if Mr. Ickes ever decides to take a jughug.

FORM

A similar explanation lies behind the Virgin Islands shake-up. The White House did not care for the way things were going. It decided to get rid of Governor Pearson and Judge Wilson. The shake-up was arranged diplomatically so that everyone would save his face while losing his official head. Mr. Roosevelt even went to the extent of lifting a letter from what is now known as his "kiss of death" form letter A-1, expressing his deep appreciation of the services of those who must depart.

Incidentally, the Justice Department was not so sorry as it pretended to be in making a place for Governor Pearson on the parole board. Authorities there had long been hoping to make a place for someone on that board.

DISCONTENT

If you will place these incidents together and couple them with others like the recent transfer of capable Assistant Commerce Secretary Dickinson to the Justice Department, you will have a hint of a changing inner condition here within your plain sight.

President Roosevelt is reshuffling his jacks and queens. He has not come to the cabinet kings yet. In fact, there are evidences of disinclination to go into that situation very vigorously in the face of the very warm political situation which is developing.

But deeper than these things, it discloses a fundamental dissatisfaction at the top with the way things have been going; also a desire to revise and rebolster the New Deal in the matter of personnel.

PREPARATIONS

Those closest to the Securities and Exchange Commission keyhole noted some time ago that Chairman Kennedy was making a few personal preparations to get back to private business, probably in the fall. Later they have been some further activities along this line.

The President undoubtedly will try to get Kennedy to stay. He is now about the only conservative balance remaining in the official family. A higher and more interesting job may be offered him as bait.

NEIGHBORS

Incidentally, Mrs. Morgenthau recently rented a house for the summer at Cape Cod. The treasury secretary got away last week-end to see the house for the first time. He liked it. It was developed for the first time in the new door neighbor was Joe Kennedy, the chairman of the SEC. Kennedy also was week-ending with his family.

"In that case," said Mr. Morgenthau, "I will go over and have dinner with him," and did.

PRESERVES

A major Washington misunderstanding seems to have arisen around the fact that Mrs. Garner has gone home. A sharp-eyed newsman noted her disappearance and concluded that this indicated congress would not be long adjourning. The story spread far and wide.

The fact is the wife and secretary of the vice president departed for Uvalde about six weeks ago without getting her departure mentioned even in the society columns. And the reasons she went home were both considered far more important than congress: (1) Her granddaughter had arranged to visit her, and (2) she had arranged to do her spring preserving and canning.

As a pre-emptive punter has pointed out, Mrs. Garner never permits congress to poach on her preserves.

Notwithstanding, adjournment of congress is a far better bet than most of the congressmen yet know.

In Georgia Fields and Streams

BY H. A. CARTER.

One cannot do justice to Chassahowitzka in a week or even in a month. Every season of the year is different and every day in the month is different. Even the hours of the day have their individual moods. Squalls blow in from the Gulf of Mexico and threaten to swamp you, but you are safe in the shelter of the closest island and before you get across the channel, guineas wash in the swell, the clouds scatter, the wind dies and you are left feeling extremely silly in a broiling hot sun. Your face turns red but not necessarily from embarrassment. The sun has something to do with it from both angles.

What I have seen here since my arrival two and a half weeks ago would take many of these short items to cover. Now I shall break camp and trace the animal communities toward the inland. I shall cut across the peninsula, watching and trapping as I go, to see what I can see. It's a great life, except that trapping is hard on the eyes and the body has been most trying to the trapping mammalogist. The small mice that I have taken in my traps have been the despair of this trip. Animals are obtained from the specimens, regardless of the time or schedule I adopt to get the traps in. No matter how recent the catch, I am almost certain to find it half consumed by big red ants.

I must have some live traps, even if they are many times as bulky and hard to carry. It is discouraging to have a 30 cent live trap in the trap and to be able to salvage only a skull.

And here I start to close out the Chassahowitzka series and not say a word about life! That is absurd. I'll better run a few more while I'm getting more data on the slow trip across the peninsula. There have been plenty of fish and water turtles and little blue herons and little green herons and some crows and one white bird and a Florida duck with four young and a scattering of wood ducks and red-shouldered hawks and barred owls and night hawks and sparrows wait a minute! These go for next week.

Sackett's Harbor.

The Battle of Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., in 1812 provided one of the most unusual incidents in military history. Royal troops of the five British warships attacking the United States fort, tossed over a 32-pound shot which one of the Americans quickly caught up from the furnace, rammed it into a cannon and sent it hurtling back at the ship. It crashed through her stern splinters as high as her mizen topmast and killed 14 and wounded 18. The British squadron turned tail and scurried out of the harbor while an American band played "Yankee Doodle."

It was not, however, a "one cannon ball battle," as has been claimed. The Royal George already had been hit twice when the return of her own shot crippled her.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Prohibition NEW YORK, July 28.—Recalling the twenty, noisy, incredibly trashy scenes amid which the people's choices were determined by two great congresses of low-grade political job holders and job seekers in Chicago three years ago I would revise for your attention the fact that the citizens at that time were divided on just one issue.

That was not recovery or the constitution, but prohibition.

But, although big and little banks had been popping all over the land for a long time like an endless string of fire-crackers, the question before the delegates and the country was just that the conventions would do about liquor.

Bishop Cannon was there, a little worse for the rough-and-tumble of politics by this time, but as practical and arrogant as ever and with him the most famous of the time—William Brewster, the bird expert, the former pinhead, game in the reporters' room at the White House, later Ernest Hemingway, F. Scott McBrice, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, of Brooklyn; the Rev. William Sheen, of Chicago; and Henry W. Peabody, of Boston, and Florida, and Colonel Raymond Robbins, the vanishing crusader.

These are all forgotten terrorists now, but in their prime they constituted the most fearsome band that ever haunted the dreams of a president. So mighty and bold they were that Mr. Hoover, not long before, had been driven from the time-honored bridge, formerly pinhead, game in the reporters' room at the White House, later Ernest Hemingway, F. Scott McBrice, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, of Brooklyn; the Rev. William Sheen, of Chicago; and Henry W. Peabody, of Boston, and Florida, and Colonel Raymond Robbins, the vanishing crusader.

Mr. Hoover, on mounting the throne, had promised to investigate the whole problem of prohibition and abide by the findings of his commission and then had repudiated those findings when they disagreed with his own. He had promised to investigate the whole problem of prohibition and abide by the findings of his commission and then had repudiated those findings when they disagreed with his own.

That this conception of political expediency was a wrong guess was his own hard luck and that of his party, for the resentment only gained in fury and it was done on a cheap, superficial issue.

That Mr. Roosevelt, in his turn, has repudiated a similar and with amazing cynicism the promise in his own platform to abolish the vast bureau which he condemned in Mr. Hoover's administration may be conceded without affecting the case.

At the time of the last conventions the country had been harassed and bullied for 13 years by succeeding waves of thieves and ecclesiastical bull-dozers, a member of the United States senate had been shot through the head by a prohibition agent firing at a suspect in the streets of Washington, and the most brutal spectacle of the whole year, the house of representatives had been driven almost to the point of cheer the news that an innocent 17-year-old boy, hitch-hiking in a bootlegger's car, had been shot dead by a prohibition cop. That average outburst marked the turn.

To be sure, as at all national conventions during prohibition, many of the delegates who advanced on Chicago to vote dry managed to get a job in the government, and a characteristic story for days and the bootlegger pursued his rounds in the hotels where they were stabled without consideration.

A greasy dice across the street from the convention hall did business with the republicans as long as they were in the room and was raided by a great vigor when the democrats gathered for their own orgy. This persecution, exceeding the bounds of civilized political warfare, only made the democrats madder.

The republicans knocked Mr. Hoover on the head when they adopted their "yes and no" declaration on prohibition, thus inviting the democrats to go all the way in theirs, and the democrats did amid frantic cheers from the delegates, including a large number who had been dry as long as there was money in it.

It should be remembered that the delegates who vote on the presidential nominees and platforms are one of the lowest forms of insect life known to science, and the republicans have been practicing in America.

But repeal is here. Mr. Hoover is gone because he couldn't call the thing a "yes and no" and Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Peabody, Chase and Robbins, all are gone, the old familiar furries, brewery trucks roll through the streets and gin steels and side by side with oatmeal and soap on the grocers' shelves and at night the electric lights spill out in proud, wicked defiance the long-forbidden word "saloon."

HE WHO HONORS HIS PARENTS

Abimi, son of Rabbi Abahu, was the father of five children, but the youngest, but the youngest even so much as to open the door for their grandfather, or attend to any of his wants when he himself was at home. He felt it was his own duty to honor his father, and he expected his own children to honor and respect him. One day his father asked him for a glass of water. He went to obtain it, but upon his return to the room he found his father had fallen asleep. Accordingly he stood by his father's side with the glass in his hand until he awoke, rather than disturb his father's rest.

Says the Talmud further on the subject of honoring one's parents: "Honor thy father and thy mother by attending to their wants. Give them to eat and drink and even to their shoes if they are unable to do so themselves."

"A child, who has prospered, must share his prosperity with his parents. He should not be in greater luxury than his parents. He must not permit them to live in poverty while he enjoys wealth."

Health Talk

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

Jessie Laird Brodie, of the Collins Laboratory of Nutritional Research, Oregon University Medical school, found that 10 out of 23 young in four litters of albino rats had pyloric stenosis or obstruction if the mother's diet was poor in vitamin B.

Human babies sometimes suffer from congenital pyloric stenosis. I have a notion, just one of my queer notions, that adults more frequently suffer from hypovitaminosis B than from any other vitamin deficiency.

We know that an adequate supply of vitamin B is the natural stimulus to the motor processes of digestion. We think it gives "tone" to the involuntary muscles of the alimentary tract. But that is not the only function of vitamin B. There is good reason to believe it is essential for normal carbohydrate metabolism, the assimilation of food, and the use of energy.

Underweight individuals, patients with diabetes, patients subject to atonic constipation or spastic constipation or so-called mucous colitis (a misnomer, since there is no inflammation of the colon), should make sure to get an optimal ration of vitamin B in one form or another.

Another notion of the same sort is Dr. Brady's statement, without a single rat or guinea pig to back me up—is that it is mainly vitamin B which has to do with the vital matter of ordering. What I mean is that I suspect the reason why so many persons have such an abnormal craving, hunger or fondness for the carbohydrates (which are mainly responsible for obesity) is that they do not get sufficient vitamin B. I reach this conclusion from the voluntary reports of a large number of patients (patients of my colleagues) who have followed a reduction regimen including an optimal ration of all the vitamins but particularly A and B. They remark how they find they are satisfied with less food than they formerly craved.

The best food sources of the several vitamins are given in detail in the booklet "Building Vitality," a copy of which, if you are interested, I will send you on request. Include 10 cents coin and a stamped addressed envelope.

What we do know about vitamins fills many books, but what we don't know yet will fill many more books. A few years hence, I am trying to pass along the

32 PROJECTS FINISHED UNDER PWA IN GEORGIA

J. Houstoun Johnston Says
Non-Federal Allotments
Total $5,262,535.

Thirty-two non-federal PWA projects have been completed in Georgia and 10 additional ones are in process of construction, J. Houstoun Johnston, acting state director, said yesterday.

Besides these, allotments for two other projects costing $916,130 have been made and work on the two projects is scheduled to begin soon. The total estimated cost of the 44 enterprises is $5,262,535, Johnston said.

Non-federal projects are those for which local governmental units contribute a portion of the expense, while federal projects are those carried out directly by the government in its property.

All the 44 projects have been finished.

School, Marlow; abattoir, Albany; waterworks, Cornelia; waterworks, Union Point; swimming pool, LaGrange; bridge, Jenkins county.

Under Construction:

Approved and ready to start: Canal, Augusta; waterworks and electric plant, Sandersville.

Director Johnston received from Washington a report of the PWA division of economics which has just completed a national survey which showed the status of the public works program as of July 1.

National Scope of Work.
The report showed that 13,238 projects costing $685,421,693 have been completed and are in use, 4,514 projects costing $1,787,187,135 are under construction and 1,428 projects costing $321,026,225 have received allotments and are in various stages of progress preliminary to actual construction.

Expenditures for materials amount to $1,000,000,000, for wages $485,000,000 and other expenditures $65,000,000, for a grand total of $1,550,000,000.

How PWA has filled the gap until the new program gets fully under way was revealed in the announcement by Johnston that PWA has under construction 1,535 non-federal projects throughout the country, the estimated cost of which is $728,892,193. These projects are of the type generally for which PWA state directors are now receiving applications for loans and grants of 55 per cent and 45 per cent, respectively, and grants only of 45 per cent of the cost of the project. Federal projects are those carried out directly by the government on government property for federal purposes.

REV. JOHN MOORE WALKER.

Moral Authority Is Urgent Need, Says the Rev. John Moore Walker

(Editor's Note: The Constitution this morning presents the 28th of a series of features dealing with Atlanta ministers and their services. On succeeding Mondays other clergymen will be shown in their pulpits together with abstracts of their messages.)

"It is authority that redeems liberty from being license. Without some authority to obey, one's life is undisciplined; and it is the undisciplined man who becomes the creature and the victim of his impulses. Perhaps there is nothing more urgently required in our generation than moral authority. And he who would be a Christian must decisively commit himself to the authority of Christ's leadership. Surely nothing less is to be expected. Let us bear this in mind as we consider the import of our text, 'Whosoever smiteth thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.' Remember this mandate comes with all the weight of the Master's authority and is therefore not to be evaded or brushed aside. It expresses something clear and definite in the Christian program of conduct.

Clear and Definite.
What is this clear and definite something? It is with no desire to evade, but to discover, the truth that I question the literal as being the real meaning of the text. 'If a man cometh unto Me and hateth not his own father and mother and wife and children, he cannot be My disciple,' is an example of Christ's sayings in which the literal meaning is not the true meaning. So also 'If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee... if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off and cast it from thee.' The intent here is clear enough, but it is not the literal meaning of the text (for surely our Lord in this context was not referring to surgery!).

Again; a person could follow the text literally and at the same time harbor black hatred in his heart. I can picture Uriah Heep literally turning the other cheek—and we all know what manner of man he was.

Right Spirit.
But, someone may object, it goes without saying the text should be followed in the right spirit. Yes, there you have it, the right spirit. And this right spirit is the true meaning of the command. Recognize it, embody it in your conduct, and you will be following the leadership of Jesus Christ in this particular. And the spirit, what is it? It is one whereby we rise above the natural impulse of revenge and retaliation. It is when we conquer the desire to requite an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.

Show me the man who, with opportunity to do otherwise, has reached that greatness of soul wherewith he bestows a forgiving magnanimity upon one who has done him real harm, hurt and hindered him; and I will show you the man who so far from retaliating in kind has exhibited the spirit of turning the other cheek. And anyone, let me add, who thinks such an interpretation means a watering down of the text from its native strength and force undertake to embody the spirit just described in his own thought, word, and deed; and I believe he will change his mind.

ARMY'S HUGE BOMBER MAKES MAIDEN FLIGHT

SEATTLE, July 28.—(UP)—The Flying Fortress—a huge Boeing bomber built for the army air corps—made its maiden flight today.

The plane, equipped with four 700 h. p. motors, took off after a 500-foot run and, flying at an altitude of between 7,000 and 8,000 feet, remained in the air for 90 minutes.

Les Tower, chief pilot, who was accompanied by Louis Waite, assistant test pilot, said they did not attempt to test the plane's speed but made about 200 m. p. h.

"It's the biggest plane I ever flew," said Towers after landing, "but it handles like a light pursuit plane."

Tower will probably fly the bomber non-stop to Dayton, Ohio, for competition with other army bombers August 22.

Company officials claim the Flying Fortress is capable of 250 m. p. h., the fastest of the world's large bombers.

DETROIT SMASHES CLEVELAND, 14 TO 6; CUBS WIN AGAIN.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(UP)—The New York Giants won a double-header from the Brooklyn Dodgers today, 6-0 and 1-0, but they only were able to add a game to their National League lead because the second-place Chicago Cubs matched the leaders with their ninth consecutive victory.

Carl Hubbell blanked the Dodgers with five hits as he registered his first shut-out of the season in the nightcap.

Clyde Castleton, who has been on the injured list for a fortnight, celebrated his return to action by limiting the Dodgers to four hits in the nightcap.

Veteran Charley Root pitched his sixth straight victory in setting the Reds down for the Cubs. Bill Jurges collected four hits as he banged five Red pitchers for 13 hits.

The third-place St. Louis Cardinals split a double-header with the Pittsburgh Pirates and dropped to 4-12 games behind the Giants. The Cards won the first, 4-3, snapping the Pirates' nine-game streak. Dizzy Dean scored his 10th victory in pitching the opener.

YANKEES DIVIDE.

The New York Yankees ended their disastrous home-stand by splitting a double-header with the Washington Senators, winning the opener, 7-6, and dropping the nightcap, 7-1.

The split sent the Yankees to three full games behind the leading Detroit Tigers who whipped the Cleveland Indians, 14-6.

The Tigers banged out 20 hits as they halted the Indians. Walter Stewart, Indian starting pitcher, failed to last through the first inning as the Tigers made a headlong dash for the lead.

The third-place Chicago White Sox failed to gain ground in their race to catch the Yankees as they split a double-header with the St. Louis Browns.

RED SOX CLIMB.

The Boston Red Sox climbed into fourth place over the Indians with a 11-3 victory over the Cleveland Athletics. Ten walks by three opposition pitchers aided the Red Sox cause.

GIANTS 6-1; DODGERS 0-0.

THE UPRISING OF THE CUBS.

Somewhere down the stretch of this fading summer's pennant race there will be all the action anyone wants.

A good part of this is almost certain to take place in the National League, where most of the current talk has been about the Cardinals and the Giants.

What about Chicago's Cubs? In the late scuffle between Bill Terry and Frank Frisch, the Cubs have been overlooked in the midst of a mid-summer drive that has been one of the features of the year.

Old-timers still remember the Cubs from 1906 to 1910. They won four pennants in five years and were even more of a rip-roaring outfit than the present Cardinals.

They were directed by Frank Chance, a hustling, hard-boiled, fighting leader who would take a rhinoceros and a tiger barchanded, with a cobra thrown in.

There was Kling back of the bat, one of the smartest catchers who ever lived. He was one of the few smart enough to cross up Ty Cobb, who wasn't any too easy to cross.

There were Miner Brown, Reulbach, Pfeister, Overall and others in the box.

There was Chance at first—Evers at second—Tinker at short—Steinfeldt at third, with Sheppard, Hoffman, Slagle and Schulte in the outfield.

No ball club in history ever carried more brains or more fire. The Cubs of 1906 won 116 ball games. What club has come even close to that mark since?

Here is all you wanted in skill and color—a team good enough to win whenever it felt in the mood.

So the uprising of the new Cubs brings back a series of ball chapters which belongs in the upper chronicles of the game.

BROWN TO MEET OSTAPOVITCH

Orville Brown, who is rated as one of those most likely to lift Danny O'Mahoney's new wrestling crown, will return to Atlanta's wrestling world Wednesday night at the baseball park.

The spectacular Brown will meet Don Ostapovitch in the main event of the "Big Wrestling Match" which will be held at 8 o'clock.

Frank Speer, the Atlanta boy who has become one of the better wrestlers in the game in the three years he has been campaigning, will meet Karl Davis.

This is a headlining match all by itself as Davis is one of the main event wrestlers who has shown here before. Weber regards his card, with six wrestlers, as one of the best he has had.

The fifth and sixth on his card are the old villain, Joe Cox, and Roland Kirsheneyer. They will wrestle in the 30-minute opening match.

It is a well-balanced card and headed by Brown, who is popular here, the park should be well filled.

The ticket will be admitted free with a paid escort to any seat desired. More than 500 ladies saw the matches last week as guests of the management.

Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(UP)—The promptness with which Mrs. Evelyn B. Smith, a slim, bespectacled woman of 46 will be returned to Chicago to face a charge that she was party to a $500 murder contract, depended upon her arraignment tomorrow.

Two Chicago officers came to New York by air today, desirous of returning with her tonight.

Procedure outlined by Brooklyn police who are holding Mrs. Smith, however, called for her appearance in Manhattan's police lineup tomorrow and arraignment later on a fugitive-from-justice charge.

Mrs. Smith, who denied any complicity in the killing of Ervin Lang, 28-year-old grocery clerk, meanwhile faced a grilling by Lieutenant Otto Eriano and Sergeant Joseph Arnold of the Chicago police.

She was found by detectives in a rooming house yesterday after a search that started early this month when she was accused by Mrs. Blanche Dunkel of complicity in the slaying of Mrs. Dunkel's son-in-law.

Mrs. Dunkel was quoted as saying Mrs. Smith promised to "get rid of" Lang for $500. Lang's body, from which the legs had been cut, was found by berry pickers in a swamp near Hammond, Ind., July 9.

Mrs. Smith said she knew Mrs. Dunkel but denied any connection with the death plot. She said she was surprised to know police were hunting her and expressed willingness to return to Chicago.

"I have nothing to fear," she said. Mrs. Dunkel in Chicago identified the alleged fugitive from a photograph and to questioning by Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty reasserted the New York prison was the woman she paid to kill Lang.

Mrs. Dunkel, 43 and a grandchild, accused Mrs. Smith and a Chinese companion, Henry Lang, of the actual killing and disposal of the body. Mrs. Smith, also known as Pearl Johnson, said it was a year since she had seen Lang, she said she came here by bus July 8.

Mrs. Dunkel told police she hired the pair to do away with Lang because she feared he would tell her husband, Mr. Lang, who died last December 20.

HEAT MADE BY MAN GREATER THAN SUN'S

Flaming Carbon Arcs for Movies 400 Times Hotter
Than Old Sol.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 28. (AP)—A discovery that man has surpassed the heat of the sun has been made with a new camera at the General Electric Company.

In the movie theater you see your favorite star on the screen by virtue of the light from the temperature of a flaming carbon arc which is 400 degrees hotter than the surface of the sun.

In some new welding arcs that heat flames momentarily several thousand degrees above the sun.

These discoveries are the result of accurately measuring for the first time the temperatures of the hottest electric arcs—the spurt of flame between two electrodes of various kinds of metal.

The highest previously measured heat was that of the carbon arc, about 8,800 Fahrenheit, compared with 9,000 degrees of the sun's surface. Nothing was known about the newly found arc temperatures, and it was commonly supposed they were much lower.

The common carbon arc, used in most movie theaters, for searchlights, and for illuminating the entrances at first night, has a temperature of 8,400 degrees.

Are Is 11,300 Degrees. The tungsten arc burns at 11,300 degrees Fahrenheit. In certain welding arcs the hot core stands at 10,300 degrees. The noisy sputter of some of these arcs is made by heat flames which may jump to more than 13,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

The camera reads the temperature by photographing a sound wave in the flaming gas of the arc. The sound is made by a loud spark at one end of the arc.

The sound travels the length of the arc, visible as an extra glow, a real wave of light. The hotter the arc the faster the speed of the sound it carries.

Other temperatures previously known are: Runen burner, 3,400 F.; coal gas flame, 3,000; oxy-hydrogen flame, 5,000; oxy-acetylene flame, 6,300.

THRONG ATTENDS RALLY IN BEHALF OF MOONEY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28. (AP)—Defenders of Tom Mooney rallied at a mass meeting here today on the 19th anniversary of his imprisonment and shouted approval when speakers described him as a martyr to the cause of organized labor.

The throng at the civic auditorium, estimated at 8,000 persons, cheered Harry Bridges, militant San Francisco longshoreman, when he charged Mooney was convicted through a "frame-up" of the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing here.

Mooney, though across the bay in San Quentin prison under a life sentence, spoke to the meeting through the medium of talking motion pictures. The picture, a review of his case, was taken some time ago and has been shown throughout the country.

FRESH EFFORTS MADE TO SAVE MAN IN WELL

NATTITUCK, N. Y., July 28. (AP)—A new shaft was dug tonight to rescue Richard Hojanicki, 44, buried a few feet from his home when the walls of a 22-foot well he was digging collapsed.

Firemen, police and workers dug frantically under floodlights in a scene reminiscent of the attempt to rescue Floyd Collins from Sand Cave, Ky. A machine digger was rushed

Woman Dying at Miami Believed To Be Atlantian

MIAMI, Fla., July 28. (AP)—Police tonight were trying to identify a woman apparently lying near death in a Miami hospital. The woman, about 26 years old, collapsed in an arcade yesterday and has been in a strange "hypnotic stupor" since then.

From information gathered from her personal effects, police believe that she is an Atlanta stenographer whose first name is "Pearl," and that she came to Miami from Atlanta last Monday.

Atlanta police last night were attempting to check here to determine if the woman were from this city. Description furnished police here said the woman was about five feet, six inches tall, weight 103 pounds, light brown hair, hazel eyes, wearing a light blue print dress, and had a scar on the left side of her face.

To the shaft after a hand-dug hole collapsed almost imprisoning three volunteers.

Rescue parties, working steadily for more than 24 hours, dug planks might have protected Hojanicki and allowed him to breathe beneath tons of sand. Hojanicki's son, Frank, saw the collapse late yesterday.

L. H. MARLETT, 49, PASSES AT ATHENS

Dairy Specialist at University Dies of Heart Attack.

ATHENS, Ga., July 28.—L. H. Marlett, 49, dairy specialist of the University of Georgia, died here at 10:30 o'clock tonight after a heart attack.

He had been associated with the university since 1917, coming here to take charge of the cheese-making activities. He later served as creamery efficiency expert and last year was head of the meat-canning operations.

Surviving are his wife and a daughter, Margaret Marlett, who are in New York. Funeral arrangements will be delayed, pending the arrival of his family.

CHICAGO PAIR ROBBED OF $15,000 IN JEWELS

CHICAGO, July 28. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr.—he is the son of the chief justice of the criminal court and she is the granddaughter of the late William Wrigley Jr.—were robbed of $15,000 in jewels by three gunmen early today.

The Sullivans were halted while driving to their Lake Shore drive home. Pistols were placed against them. Mrs. Sullivan, the former Betty O'Hara, one of the wealthiest women in Chicago society, gave up her wedding and engagement rings and four other rings, one of which she valued at $10,000. Her husband estimated his loss at $1,200 in jewelry.

wrist watch, which will be awarded each city champion at Akron, Ohio; a $10 coupon book, given by the Sinclair Refining Company; $10 worth of groceries for the family, given by Piggly Wiggly; and last, but not least, he will go to the national Soap Box finals at Akron, Ohio, on August 11.

Second Place Winner. Virgil King, winner of last year's contest here and winner of second place, will be presented a Delco Home all-wave radio by the United Motors Service; a silver medal from the Chevrolet Motor Car Company; a victory trophy from the American Oil Company; a $5 coupon book from the Sinclair Refining Company; and $10 worth of auto service from the Eaton Products, Inc. It was erroneously reported yesterday that he would receive a miniature auto. The second automobile will be awarded to the soap box car adjudged the best designed machine entered in the Derby.

M. S. Brooks Jr., who almost stole the show from the winners by his daring driving and who is only 7 years old, captured third place and will receive a Rollfast bicycle from the King Hardware Company; a bronze medal from the Chevrolet Motor Car Company; a trophy from Bill Brienstein, AAA race official; and $10 worth of auto service from the Cone Street Garage.

James Jackson, negro speed demon and the only one to finish in a special contest for negro children, already has his reward—a crisp new $5 bill. James' car crossed the finish line in difficulty and then began throwing nuts and bolts all around the place.

Plans already are being made for next year's event. With such a galaxy of prizes and such cheering crowds, such youthful speed wizards it may surpass even this year's event.

NEW YORK-TO-NORWAY FLIERS IN GREENLAND

JULIANEHAAB, GREENLAND, July 28. (AP)—The Solberg and Paul Oscanyan, Norwegian-Americans, attempting a flight from New York to Norway in easy hops, brought their big amphibian plane, the Left Ericson, down here safely tonight after a flight from Cartwright, Labrador.

Favored by fine weather, the fliers completed the 600-mile flight eight hours and 15 minutes after taking off from Cartwright at 8:30 a. m. They said they would refuel and await fair weather for a hop to Iceland, whence they plan to fly directly to Norway, probably landing at Bergen.

MAN STABBED IN LUNG IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Dan Camp, 26, of 26 Fair street, St. Louis, Mo., was stabbed in the back, one of the thrusts puncturing his right lung, during an altercation at Fair street and Central avenue, police reported.

Curtis Alderman, 23, of 300 Washington street, St. W., was arrested by officers and booked on a charge of suspicion of stabbing after he had been identified by witnesses, according to police, as Camp's assailant.

REP. McSWAIN INJURED SLIGHTLY IN AIRPLANE

WASHINGTON, July 28. (AP)—Representative McSwain, democrat, South Carolina, suffered a cut hand today when he was toppled into a light shade as an army airplane in which he was riding landed sharply.

McSwain, chairman of the house military committee, was returning to Washington with several other members of the committee from an inspection trip of army airfields.

He was taken to Walter Reed hospital for treatment.

BADLY-MANGLED BODY FOUND IN RAIL YARDS

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 28. (AP)—Railroad authorities today said the badly-mangled body of a young man found in yards here yesterday was that of James R. Burton, 20, of Birmingham, Ala. They reported a radio school diploma aided in the identification.

The officials said the youth apparently lost his footing and fell beneath wheels of a train. Burton was decapitated, and both arms and his left leg were severed.

Auto Racer Killed.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 28. (AP)—Kenneth "Millionaire" Baker, 22, of Pasadena, Cal., was killed in the last event of an American Legion auto racing program here today when his car collided with one driven by Bob Hornbrook, of Phoenix, Ariz., who apparently escaped serious injury.

W. F. ANDERSON DIES AT GRADY HOSPITAL

Retired Policeman Was
Member of Old Flying Squadron.

W. F. Anderson, former member of the old flying squadron of the police department and a police officer for 20 years, died at Grady hospital last night after a blood transfusion had been given to him by his son, E. F. Anderson, in an effort to save his life.

Anderson, who was 56, joined the police force in 1901 and served until 1920. He had been wounded several times during his service with the force and had been cited for bravery on several occasions.

The former officer was brought to Grady hospital several days ago and grew steadily weaker. The blood transfusion was given as a last resort. He had been in failing health for about three years.

Surviving are his wife, his son, two sons, Mrs. R. B. Bradshaw, of East Point, and Mrs. C. T. Terrell, and two brothers, W. M. and P. F. Anderson, the latter a member of the fire department and the former a retired member.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

NURSE DIES, 4 HURT IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Plane Falls From 200 Feet
After Take-Off at Enterprise, Ala.

ENTERPRISE, Ala., July 28. (AP)—Mrs. Cima Thompson, 27-year-old student nurse, was killed and two other persons seriously injured here late today as a plane piloted by a rural mail carrier crashed from an altitude of approximately 200 feet.

The pilot-owner of the plane, William Moore, and Earl Jones, young Chancellor community farmer, were taken to an Enterprise hospital suffering broken right legs, cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries.

The plane crashed after the Enterprise airport soon after the plane apparently developed soon after the plane attained flying speed, witnesses said.

Mrs. Thompson was a resident of Euftaula, Ala.

ABERDEEN, N. C., July 28. (AP)—Henry Allison Page Sr., 73, a former North Carolina legislator and a brother of the late Walter Hines Page, ambassador to Great Britain during the World War, died at his home late today of angina pectoris. Page's condition had been critical for two days and relatives and friends had despaired of his chances to recover.

CALLE'S SON DEFEATED 10 TO 1 FOR GOVERNOR

MEXICO CITY, July 28. (AP)—General Fortunato Zuazua won the governorship of the state of Nuevo Leon today by an estimated 10-to-1 margin over Plutarco Elias Calles Jr., son of the former president, and observers said it meant the loss of nominal control over another state for the former "iron man" of Mexico.

Some believed it was the final blow to the prestige and power which the former president wielded over Mexico for more than eight years.

The election was reported quietly carried out, but in several other Mexican states political disturbances continued to hold interest.

Catfish Make Whoopee After Distillery Fire

ALTON, Ill., July 28. (AP)—Fishermen looked on pop-eyed today as tipping catfish in the Mississippi river shallows here began raising whoopee.

The fish, believed by river men to have been intoxicated by mash from the $2,500,000 fire which the Hiram Walker distillery at Peoria Monday, were observed leaping about madly shortly after dawn.

The more athletic flopped out on the bank. Others merely came to the surface and leaped at spectators drawn to the banks by the phenomenon.

Several members of the crowd snatched the fish with nets and by hand. One caught a 20-pounder, and Earl Steiner, operator of a fish dock here, exhibited a 7-pound catfish.

Steiner said a distinct odor of burned sugar could be detected in the water where the fish were going through their strange antics.

ETHIOPIA REJECTS ITALY'S PROPOSAL

conciliation procedure which now stands deadlocked on the Unalul incident has thrown the British plans into disorder.

Efforts to gain the full co-operation of France in persuading Italy to discuss broader issues are understood to be hampered by France's desire to have the League council handle the problem over to the three powers—Italy, Great Britain and France—signatory to the 1906 Ethiopian treaty.

The London Times' writer "Scrutator" in an editorial today described the attempt to restrict the council negotiations to the Unalul incident as "a wretched scuffle about a water hole in the desert."

"If this occasion of the quarrel were its real substance," he wrote, "it could be settled in a forenoon." The editorial urges that the League be left out of the dispute, and asserts that if France and England will work together they can prevent the threatened war.

It is understood that Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Rome, has been instructed to proceed with informal exchanges with the Italian government during the short time remaining before the council meeting in an effort to find a basis on which Mussolini will be willing to talk.

"LIFE OR DEATH, NOW OR NEVER"

ROME, July 28. (AP)—Italy's historic hour has come, bringing with it "life or death, now or never" for the nation. Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, of Milan, proclaimed today.

The newspaper came out a few hours before Fulvio Suvich, under-secretary for foreign affairs, received Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador. After their conversations Suvich flew to Rome to see Mussolini where he saw Mussolini. It became known today that this was the second or third time that Suvich has flown to Rocca delle Carmine in the last eight days.

The conversation between Suvich and Sir Eric was described in diplomatic circles as inconclusive. It was said it dealt with the forthcoming League of Nations council meeting.

A government spokesman said Ethiopia's negative reply to Suvich's demand on whether Ethiopia would resume the meetings of the conciliation commission was the death sentence of that commission. It was also said that Ethiopia's reply was anticipated by the government here.

Mussolini's newspaper said: "Not to feel the stirring boom of this historic hour is to fail in the tasks which it imposes, or even to hesitate in making conclusive decisions means to renounce or to fail in the right and duty of life."

Fascist Italy, says the newspaper, "under a prodigious super-human tension feels its historic hour. The Italian people have but one peremptory duty and that is to obey and march on—if necessary against everything and against everyone."

Informed sources agree that Italy would have little hesitation in sacrificing the League of Nations in the cause of fascist glory.

ETHIOPIAN WOMEN STAGE DEMONSTRATION. ADDIS ABABA, July 28. (AP)—For the second time within a week the women of Ethiopia staged a huge patriotic demonstration in the main square of the city today.

Relays of speakers, under the supervision of 1,000 women who formed the demonstration, harangued crowds, urging the support of Emperor Haile Selassie in appealing for assistance of the Red Cross.

The native press today took advantage of an opportunity to praise British justice and to lash out at the Italian government.

Praise was given to Great Britain for its attitude in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, with especial reference to its treatment of reports in the Italian press over supposed incidents in which some British troops were killed in a clash with Ethiopians.

The British foreign office officially denied a Stefani (Italian) news agency dispatch that three British aviators were killed last June in a "bloody" encounter between Ethiopian soldiers and British native troops.

The foreign office said the incident occurred three years ago and now was in the course of settlement.

The native press, describing the

- TANGLED LOVE -

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

INSTALLMENT XXV.

Often she wondered if Stephen were happy in this bargain with her. They were engaged; he was obviously devoted to her. But he did not make love to her and his vague kisses had no warmth in them. All the love I wanted, she thought, feeling the warm sun on her brown body, I can never have. All the love I want to give, I can never give. She and Stephen would always be gay, casual, full of each other. But it would never be anything more than that. I expected so much of love and marriage.

Stephen came out of the bathroom, dressed. "Not dressed yet?" She wanted to say, "Stephen, this feeling we have for each other isn't love. We shouldn't marry without love. It isn't right." I t he would not understand. He would probably say, "But we have such a swell time together. Noel loves people too much."

"I'll get dressed," she said. "Would you mind if we went back to town now? I'm anxious..." "I've been waiting to hear you say that," he said, "regretted their abrupt departure. They said good-by to the household of guests and drove back to the city."

The door to Beatrice's suite was unlocked. Stephen opened it. Noel and Stephen stood still like silent children, immovable, at what their eyes beheld.

Deems, flushed, got up from Beatrice's side, and for once Beatrice was not the sophisticated Parisian. She was a woman, eyes bright, lips curved into an embarrassed smile, a woman in love who had lost something many years ago and regained it again.

Deems laughed and said, "Look at the infants staring, Beatrice! Come in." "They look," said Beatrice, "as though they had not planned this. They knew when they went away that..."

Deems took Beatrice's hand. "Stephen, I want to present your mother to you, as your mother and my wife-to-be. We have talked the clock around since you've been away. What—don't I hear one congratulation?"

Stephen went toward his mother-blond head against dark head. For Noel it was a touching sight. "If you had only done this years ago," said Noel, "all the necessary loneliness and bitterness."

Deems went to Beatrice and his son put his arms around them. "We've been squandering, but we're together again and Noel is with us. We have a fine family, Beatrice."

Stephen asked, "When are you going to be married?" "At once," his father replied. "A very quiet affair. And then," smiling at Beatrice, "we're going back to the island. That will be our honeymoon. We couldn't want a honeymoon without you and Noel."

"In Paris," said Beatrice, "the thought of the island so much; I never thought I'd ever see it again. It's the only place I really want to go. We have so many good years left," said Deems, "you haven't said anything."

She had been standing apart with an odd look on her face. Suppose—suppose many years hence she and Scott came together. They couldn't say, too, "We have many good years left." But she wanted Scott as he was now—tall and young and brown. "Tomorrow," said Beatrice, "I'll be married and go back to the island."

The next morning, early, Stephen went with his father to the marriage license bureau. Deems was as excited as any young bridegroom. They came back to the hotel accompanied by a clergyman. It was a simple ceremony. There was no sweet music from an organ, no clinking of bells or sweeping veil. There, in the path of the sunlight, mid the roar and noise and summer heat, Beatrice and Deems stood and renewed vows made long ago.

In a moment like this of contemplation Noel wanted to run away. From what? From marriage with Stephen that would not be marriage, but an agreement between two friends. From Scott's disturbing eyes. From Elinor's angry thrusts and tears.

When the clergyman's voice died away, Deems turned to his bride. "Beatrice, my dearest, it seems such a little while ago, but now Stephen is a man about to be married himself."

Lunch was served in the suite, and at 2 o'clock they were on their way to the station.

Baltimore was old and unspectacular after New York. Stephen's car and chauffeur were waiting.

The lights of the Spanish house on Stuart Island were on in full brilliance. Elinor obviously had come home.

"Welcome to your son's home," said Deems. "If you like the island, we'll buy a house here, overlooking the water. We could buy the old Stuart house, renovate it, and keep it in the family."

The car that Stephen had lent to Scott was parked in the driveway.

At the sound of voices, Elinor came in from the patio. "Oh, Mrs. Gordon, how lovely of you to come."

"A bride today," said Deems. "Really? This is a celebration. Darling, embracing her sister, how wonderful you look. You should see all the lovely things I've gotten at the store."

From the patio Scott came, and as always at first sight of his tall figure, Noel felt a pulse quicken. Out in the patio he and Elinor had been planning their wedding while she, on the hot train, had been torn between dread and anticipation at seeing him again.

Her eyes drew him and he thought, What have they done to you, Noel? They have dressed you up in an imported frock and put a wave in your hair, but you are still the same.

For her no other person in the room existed. "Scott, if only you could have loved me. All this wealth, these clothes mean so little when it's you I love."

Beatrice said gaily, "So this is Scott Court, the young writer, and Elinor Stuart. I'm so happy tonight I want to give out compliments and tell you what a handsome pair you are."

After a while Scott said, "Will you excuse me? I want to see Noel alone for a few minutes." He followed her to the patio.

"I got your letter," he said, "and I sent some of my stories to Hedges. It was very good to think of me, Noel."

To think of him! She had done nothing else. How simple and natural it would be to put her arms around him now, to say, "Scott, I love you so much. There has never been anyone else. Kiss me, Scott, as you once kissed me before something happened and changed everything."

She stood very still beside him. "It was nothing," she said. "I hope he was sincere."

She loves me, he thought, and I loved her, and yet we stand here out in the darkness alone as though we were strangers or old friends, met after a long absence. She is thinking of me and I am thinking of her. Yet we do nothing, because we can do nothing, because we don't want to hurt other people.

"Noel—"

Suddenly Elinor appeared. Elinor who had the startling new sister, made perfect and chic under Beatrice's supervision.

"Secrets," she asked coyly. "No," said Scott. "Then come in, darling."

Was that an admission of her fear? "Come in, darling," and she meant, further, "because Noel is a new Noel, subtle and lovely and poised. I'm afraid."

Scott went into the house, leaving Noel to ponder over something new, something strange and yet exhilarating in his manner toward her—something burning and unexpressed.

Elinor came in Noel's bedroom and Noel knew from old experience that her sister came either to quarrel or to ask a favor.

"Isn't Beatrice wonderful?" beamed the older girl. "I admire one of her braves and she gave it to me. I hope when I'm her age I still have my looks. But catering to a writer's temperament will be hard on them, I'm afraid."

Noel hated these insinuations. "Your wedding is planned, your bridal gown is bought, and yet you still can't make up your mind."

"Oh, I'm going through with it all right. It's going to be a grand show, the loveliest wedding the island has ever seen. It's when all the excitement is over that I'm worrying about."

"That," said Noel, brushing her hair. "Is when I cease to worry."

"You certainly learned things on that short trip," her sister said sarcastically. "You're just a little Noel Stuart back again. Funny, just Noel, and in a few weeks you'll be married. Can't we stop being children?"

Elinor burst into tears. "Nobody pays any attention to my wedding! What do you care if I have to live in a stuffy apartment with Scott?"

"No one is making you marry him!" "I have a feeling," said Elinor, a startling confession for her, "that he would like to get out of it. We can't get along at all. But I'm going through with it. He's not going to break it off!"

Elinor dried her brief tears. "Would you like to see my wedding dress?"

"Of course, I'd love to."

She followed Elinor to her bedroom. Draped across a big chair was a silver lame dress with a long train. Noel admired the soft material and admired it.

"It looks heavenly on me!" Elinor cried. "Most girls wear satin. It took every cent of the rent money from the old house to buy it. But you don't need any money the way the Gordons have been buying you things."

"They've been wonderful to me," Elinor smiled. "I can't understand people's their ages being in love."

It was nice to be back on the beach again, with the faint breeze stirring her hair and the feel of the warm sun on her wet body. People said, "There's Noel Stuart back again. Funny, just Noel, and in a few weeks you'll be married. Can't we stop being children?"

Stephen Gordon, my dear, would millions his grandmother left him. Have you heard—Deems Gordon has remarried his ex-wife and brought her back, too? Marriage seems to be in the blood of the people who live in the Spanish villa. Her sister Elinor is going to marry a writer in a few weeks."

Noel stretched her body on the clinging sand, shaded her eyes with her arms, and lay there, relaxed, peaceful. It was good to be alive sometimes; nothing, not even loss of Scott, could dim her joy in living.

When once she had avoided him, he now avoided her. She caught him looking at her, his dark eyes inscrutable, his thoughts masked. His eyes, though warm, were troubled eyes these days. Elinor fluttered about him, affectionate one moment, angry the next.

It was a strange household that lived in the great house on the hill. A house unpeopled outwardly, but with many unexplained emotions running riot beneath that calm surface. Noel knew that she was a girl envied, but only she knew that her position was not an enviable one.

At noon Noel left the beach, dressed, and went home. Beatrice met her in the hall.

"We're all going to the club to-night," she said. "To dance. Elinor called Scott and he's coming down, too."

Elinor came downstairs. "I finally dragged Scott from his lair. Oh, dear, do you suppose he's going to be like that when we're married?"

"What a marrying man who loves his work," said Beatrice. "More than he loves me," she laughed lightly. "Noel, for instance, would be getting a man's bedroom slippers, filling his pipe, and sharpening his pencils."

"Aren't you," asked Beatrice kindly, "exaggerating a little?" She put her arm around Noel. "But Noel is going to marry my son. Stephen is a bit flighty and she is just the girl for him."

TAKING BATHS IS NOT A HEALTH NECESSITY

How many small boys will be glad to know that health associations have found no facts to prove that taking baths makes a person any healthier than not taking them. Baths are never known to most animals, and man himself probably never took them before civilization arrived. They have aesthetic values, and certainly are to be recommended for personal comfort, but not as guarantees of better health.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

MAYAN GODS AND GODDESSES.
Down in Central America and southern Mexico is a region which has been called "the Land of Buried Cities."

The chief of all Mayan gods appears to have been "Itzamna." He was pictured as human in form, and often is spoken of as the "Roman-nosed god," because of his long, straight nose. He was old and had lost most, if not all, of his teeth. Sometimes he was shown with his mouth open but with no teeth in view; but in other cases the artists and sculptors gave him a single large front tooth.

Itzamna, we are told, was "the father of all, the inventor of writing, and the god of light and life."

Another god, known as "Ah Puch," was the lord of death. He was pictured as a skeleton, except that he had ears like those of living men, and often his arms and legs were covered with flesh.

A god who was believed to be young and much better looking was the maize god, who helped crops to grow. He wore a headdress which stood for an ear of maize, or corn.

A Mayan god who was hardly less powerful than Itzamna was known as Kukulcan. He was pictured as a snake with bird feathers attached to his head and body. A powerful two-headed dragon also played an important part in Mayan lore.

There was a goddess of the rainbow, and she was said to be the wife of Itzamna. Another goddess was supposed to have power over the wearing of cloth.

New Process in Printing Featured by Thomas F. Rybert Printing Company

WORK IS SPEEDED BY REPRODUCTION

New Equipment Permits
Multiple Duplication of Many and Varied Forms

Atlanta's first commercial multi-lith equipment, for offset printing, has just been installed by the Thomas F. Rybert Printing Company, 311 Edgewood avenue, S. E., which for many years has featured quality printing work of the highest type.

With the multi-lith, Mr. Rybert points out, printing work of virtually every type may be executed in but a fraction of the time hitherto required, since it eliminates in its entirety the setting of type and the making of cuts from which to work. It is essentially and exclusively a reproducing process, by the application of which office forms, testimonial letters, maps, graphs, charts, ruled forms, clippings, merchandise half-tone illustrations, display cards, snapshots, etc., may be produced in quantity.

Multilithing, or offset work, requires merely the photographing of the piece to be reproduced. From this a negative is made, from which the printing is executed. One negative may be used for many millions of impressions, whereas type and cuts to print clearly, must be remade many times for that number.

The multi-lith and its allied folding machinery are designed for high-speed work and are capable of turning out many thousands of pieces per hour. The latter apparatus, Mr. Rybert states, is capable of folding as many pieces in three days' time as former equipment would normally handle over a period of years.

Besides this revolutionary step in printing, the Rybert Printing Company is equipped to handle every type of ordinary commercial printing, including the production of all kinds of office forms, booklets, pamphlets,

Rock Wool Insulating Co. Reports Product in Demand

Property Owners Turning
To Amazing Material
To Safeguard Against Fuel Losses, Heat.

An almost phenomenal growth in the demand for rock wool for insulation for homes and commercial buildings has taken place during the first six months of this year, according to a statement made by executives of the Rock Wool Insulating Company of Georgia and the Carolinas.

This company has insulated thousands of homes, hospitals, apartment, office and store buildings in Georgia, and recently has taken over the franchise for North and South Carolina.

The organization is the exclusive distributor for the General Insulating & Manufacturing Company of Alexandria, Ind., whose trade name is Gimco. It carries a complete line of insulating products made from rock wool, which covers the fields of refrigeration, low and high-pressure heating equipment, soundproofing, and insulation on attics and walls of all types of buildings.

The materials used in covering this vast field will last indefinitely, due to the fact they are mined in quarries in and near Alexandria, Ind. This rock is melted in huge cupolas, under terrific temperatures, and when it leaves the cupola in a tiny stream of lava, it is subjected to a high-pressure blast of steam which vaporizes it. As this vaporized lava meets the cold air it crystallizes into minute, silky fibres. This in turn is processed to eliminate glass shot, producing the highest and purest grade of rock wool.

This loose rock wool is processed and put up in different forms to cover every insulation need, a few of which are as follows:

Granulated rock wool is pneumatically applied in the walls and attic spaces of residences and commercial buildings, regardless of the construction or age. This remarkable device quickly, cleanly and inexpensively blows a four-inch blanket of wool.

It long has specialized in the production of rule and bound blank books, cash books, journals, etc., and all kinds of loose-leaf devices. Its ruling and binding department is declared to be one of the most complete in the city.

The company prides itself upon perfect execution, perfect registration of every line and letter, and the versatility of its plant. Every man employed by the company is an expert in his line—a fact which gives to its clients double assurance of a high class of workmanship.

Businessmen of Atlanta are invited to call and confer with Mr. Rybert or with A. S. Rasbridge, vice president of the company, on their printing needs. Estimates will be furnished gladly on any job, without obligation.

CRUMBLY SHOWS GAINS IN BUSINESS

Company Serves Countless Business Houses in Advertising Distribution

Steady business gains, as reflected in the increased use of house-to-house distribution of advertising matter, are reported by the Crumbley Distributing Company, 121 Edgewood avenue, S. E., which, during the years of its service in Atlanta, has placed many millions of pieces of printed matter and samples for both local and nationally known companies.

This turn toward recovery, it is stated, has been markedly notable during June and to date in July, according to associates of A. S. Crumbley, president of the organization. It is further reflected in daily inquiries from manufacturing and distributing companies as well as retailers regarding the service it renders, and the fall, they assert, is virtually certain to register an even sharper gain in the use of this advertising medium.

Because of its long experience and the high standards it has raised and maintained in serving business houses, the Crumbley Distributing Company is especially well equipped for the accurate and efficient distributing of all types of advertising matter, including booklets, pamphlets, folders, circulars, samples and others.

Highly specialized, it may cover any designated territory or deliver matter to the doors of any particular class of ultimate buyers. Its entire attention is devoted to the task of distribution, and no side lines are followed. Only one job is handled at a time.

The Crumbley staff is composed entirely of adult men, most of them married, with families, thus further assuring the client of efficient and complete coverage of the ground for which he contracts. Each of these men undergoes a thorough training for the work before he enters a crew, and even then is under the constant direction of a supervisor who checks his work and sees that it is properly done.

Every piece of matter delivered by the Crumbley Distributing Company is properly folded, if necessary, and placed where it will positively reach the hands of the person for whom it is intended. Each is placed behind a doorknob or screen door, or in another safe spot, where it will not be blown away or become soiled or crumpled before it reaches the ultimate consumer.

Business houses in Atlanta are urged to investigate the highly specialized service rendered by the Crumbley Distributing Company. Mr. Crumbley or his associates will be glad to confer with businessmen at any time on their distribution needs, and to supply estimates on the cost of any job.

LLOYD CLEANERS ASSURE QUALITY

Painstaking Care and Purity of Solvents Basis for Fine Workmanship.

Painstaking care, that vital factor without which it is impossible to preserve the newness and freshness of a garment in the course of cleaning, is the rule and never the exception at the plant of the Lloyd Cleaners—a factor largely responsible for the ever-increasing popularity of this concern.

Fully cognizant of the absolute necessity for thoroughness in all the Lloyd Cleaners' services, Thomas W. Lloyd, president, has equipped its cleaning plant at 681-83 Boulevard, N. E., with the most modern apparatus available to make this conscientiousness possible for every garment.

The quality of Lloyd Cleaners' workmanship goes far beyond mere equipment. Only the purest of cleaning solvents are employed in its work and they are administered by a staff of efficient and painstaking men and women, each a specialist in his or her phase of dry cleaning.

This policy of consistently dependable service, backed up by the good will of the Lloyd Cleaners' organization has won and maintained through the years, has made it one of the most popular establishments of its kind in the city. The Lloyd Cleaners' service is a friendly service.

To insure perfection in its workmanship, the Lloyd Cleaners submit every garment entrusted to their hands to the extra time necessary in the cleaning process to eliminate the deeply imbedded dirt as well as the surface soil. This extra time in the cleaning process in no way interferes with promptness of service.

The Lloyd Cleaners, in addition to dry cleaning, offer a complete service which includes the cleaning and glazing of furs, moth-proofing, hat and glove cleaning, the cleaning of draperies and other household articles, and many other such services.

The organization maintains several conveniently located branch offices, where Atlantans may deposit their dry cleaning. In addition, it provides a pick-up and delivery service to all parts of the city for the convenience of its customers.

The Lloyd Cleaners' plant is manned throughout by men and women of long experience, each equipped with a thorough knowledge of the factors necessary to insure the finest of workmanship. The public is invited to visit the Boulevard plant and to see and inspect the processes employed.
